NEW STEM+CELL

Three VLCC Wellscience Stem+CTM products are shown: Stem+ Cell Defense Hydrating Toner, Stem+ Cell Protect Brightening Hydrator, and Stem+ Cell Renewal Brightening Cleanser. Each product features a DNA helix icon and the text 'Anti-Ageing'.

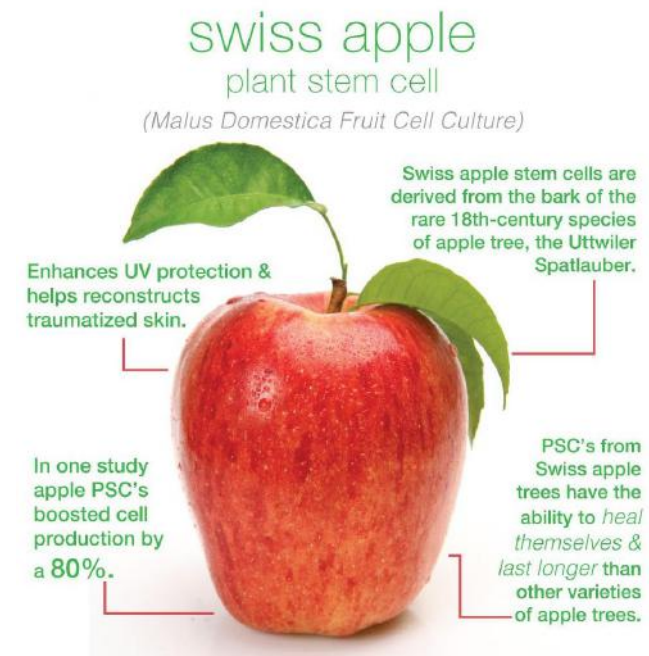

What are Stem Cells

- Stem cells are special human cells that have the ability to develop into many different cell types and also have the ability to repair damaged tissues. These cells can make identical copies of themselves as well as differentiate (in other words, split) to become separate, specialized cells.
- Two basic types of stem cells are present in the human body:
 - Embryonic stem cells can grow and differentiate into one of the more than 220 different cell types which make up the human body;
 - Adult stem cells located in some adult tissues can only differentiate into their own or related cell types. These cells act as a repair system for the body but also maintain the normal turnover of regenerative organs such as blood, skin or intestinal tissues.

Swiss Apple Plant Stem Cell

- This active ingredient won the prize in European Innovation “Best Active Ingredient” in 2008. It is a revolutionary technology designed to protect human skin stem cells with the help of stem cells from a rare Swiss apple. The clinical trials conducted by the company who discovered this ingredient showed that the participants saw a reduction in fine lines and wrinkles.
- Uttwiler Spätlauber is an endangered apple variety that is well-known for its ability to be stored for long periods without shriveling and thus its longevity potential. The apples are rich in phytonutrients, proteins and long-living cells.
- Thanks to this technology, plant stem cells can be obtained and incorporated into skin care products to enhance the longevity of skin cells. Not only does it protect the skin’s own stem cells but has been shown to have excellent age-delaying and anti-wrinkle properties, and is currently one of the most pioneering and exciting ingredients in skin care.
